

As a new subscriber to XM radio, I am appalled at the arrogance of commercial radio to try and stop free enterprise and free speech being communicated by XM radio. Commercial radio is just angry because XM is gaining a large audience and they have discovered that people will pay to not have to listen to the garbage morning and afternoon shows, as well as all the advertising, perpetrated upon the public by commercial radio. XM is exercising free speech and we are paying to enjoy their service. It would be completely against the doctrines of our Constitution for the FCC to allow commercial radio to bully it into doing what it wants. This is a clear violation of antitrust laws. This would create a government backed monopoly and is flat out WRONG! Stop the madness. Show some courage and tell commercial radio to take a hike. If they cant handle the competition, then too bad. Sell the stations and go away. XM is the best thing to happen to radio in years.
